"We are losing a wonderful, wonderful human being," he said Friday, noting Mr. Luria's 27 years as a City College trustee from 1970 to 2007, his decades of civic activism that included serving as president of Congress and of the Santa Barbara Chamber of Commerce, and his leadership in raising money for a new library, among other initiatives. He also noted Mr. Luria's role as the driving force behind the development of City College's campus in Santa Barbara.

"He is a wonderful, wonderful human being," he said, adding that Mr. Luria had dedicated his life to the community and to education.

Luria leaves behind a legacy of service and philanthropy, said his friend and former colleague, Peter MacDougall. "He was a wonderful, wonderful human being," he said, adding that Mr. Luria had dedicated his life to the community and to education.
